

Qualified Medical Expenses

IRS Publication 502, "Medical and Dental Expenses," lists expenses that can be itemized and claimed on a Schedule A (Form 1040). Most of those expenses qualify for tax-free withdrawal from a Health Savings Account (HSA) or a health Flexible Spending Account (FSA), unless the expenses were reimbursed by your health care coverage (i.e., your employer-sponsored health insurance plan).

Generally HSA and health FSA funds can be used to pay for anything that your health insurance plan (including high deductible health plans with an HSA) considers a "covered charge," including charges not paid by your health insurance because they were subject to a co-pay, deductible or coinsurance.

The following is a sample list of medical expenses that qualify for tax-free withdrawal from an HSA or health FSA. Many items not on this list may also be covered. This list is provided as reference only and is not meant to be comprehensive. Individuals are responsible for determining whether a specific treatment or service is a qualified expense. The Patient Protection and Affordable Care Act made changes to the reimbursements available, effective Jan. 1, 2011, by eliminating the availability of over-the-counter drugs as a tax-free withdrawal from an HSA, HRA or FSA without a prescription. A partial list of items has been made available at this time of what items will be affected by this change.
